The appropriate extension fee under 37 CFR 1.17(a) is calculated from: (1) the expiration date of the shortened statutory period for reply originally set in the final Office action; or (2) as set forth in (b) above, if checked. Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of the final rejection, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Art Unit: 3636

Continuation of 3. NOTE:

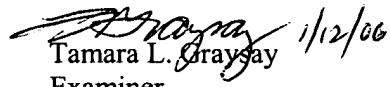

The claims have been amended such that their scope has changed, i.e., they require further consideration and/or search. For example, independent claim 8 is no longer a method claim. It may have changed statutory class due to the amendment to the preamble. The amendment to the preamble raises issues under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, on at least three levels:

- One reasonable interpretation of the recitation "A program" does not require computer executable code at all.
- "A program" as set forth in claim 8 includes images or video or audio of the method steps or activities that are stored on the computer readable medium. This interpretation further raises issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 insofar as the "program" comprises nonfunctional descriptive material that is nonstatutory.
- A program, even when claimed as computer executable, does not perform steps, but rather it is the execution of a computer code that may enable performance of the steps. Claim 8 is not clear whether it is drawn to a combination of a computer medium (containing computer executable code that when executed enables the computer to perform the method steps) or whether it is drawn to the program alone as set forth in the preamble.
